

GSI Thailand celebrates one year with a heart

In the twinkling of an eye, GMP Thailand is a year old. To commemorate their 1st anniversary, they extended their hearts and hands to the underprivileged children in the beautiful "Land of Smiles".

On 1st July 2007, some one and a half kilometres away from GSI's office in Sathorn, Bangkok, Nonglak Thanarak, Managing Director of GMP Thailand, and her team visited the Mahamek Home for Boys. The home is cradle to children prematurely thrust into the harsh realities of poverty, homelessness, delinquency and broken families.

Unlike many of our fortunate young, who grow up enjoying a toy with their 'Happy Meals' on countless occasions, these kids live content on rice or noodles. So, Nonglak thought of a wonderful way to break their dietary monotony with burgers, potato chips and cola. All in the name of inspiring smiles, there is no better satisfaction than being able to leave a happy moment in the memory of minds as innocent as theirs.

After a year since its inception, GMP Thailand is showing no signs of relenting in growth. And as the overseas branch continues to upwardly progress, Nonglak has expressed her passionate intentions in giving even more back to society.

GMP sincerely believes that charity is an important role that any corporation, new or old, large or small, should nobly and humbly rise to the undertaking.
