

TRUE-BLUE GMP-IAN

These days, there are not many people who can say they have grown together with a company, from its uncertain beginnings to one that now successfully offers a full suite of services.

Keng Boon is, fortunately, one of those who can.

Keng Boon first joined GMP in June 1996 as a temporary staff in the operations team in GMP International. Leveraging off his overseas experience during his one-month industrial attachment in China, he was then offered a three-month stint in GMP's regional office in China. And the rest, as they say, is history.

“Management has always given me support, put in their faith and trust by assigning me bigger roles each time. My colleagues also play a very important role in my career with GMP.”

Tan Keng Boon, Assistant Director,
GMP International.

He has headed the operations team in GMP International since 1999; thus began his steady ascend up the GMP ladder. He was promoted to Assistant Manager in 2001, then to Manager in 2005. In early 2009, he was made Assistant Director.

And while he has been given opportunities to explore other divisions in GMP, he enjoyed interacting with foreigners he encounters with GMP International the most. It has allowed him to learn more about other cultures and crisis management more effectively.

Keng Boon credits his achievements at GMP to the management team and his cooperative team. He is especially grateful for the concern and guidance he received when he worked with GMP's founder, late Dr. Giam.
